BUSINESS	Craig Cottle was asked by a commission member to explain how restricted licenses (licenses that prohibit the licensee from entering occupied dwellings due to a previous sex crime conviction) are policed. Cottle stated that the only way the state can follow up on restricted licenses to have investigators check for restricted licenses when they enter a work site to check for compliance. Cottle said that an investigator can cite a restricted licensee for going beyond the scope of their license if they are in an occupied dwelling. Cottle was asked about the status of the agency reviews for two applicants for a masters license that had attempted to combine their apprentice and journeyman electrician license times to satisfy the experience requirement for a master electrician license and were denied. The law states that a person that has either been supervised as an apprentice for eight years or held a journeyman electrician's license for four years may apply for licensure as a master electrician. The two denied applications in agency review had tried to combine their apprentice and journeyman years of experience thus filling neither requirement fully. Cottle stated that the review is still going on. The outcome will determine how applications will need to be handled in the future.

APPOINTMENTS:

STEVEN GLOSSNER

Steven Glossner wanted his application reviewed for approval to test for journeyman electrician. Glossner stated he had worked as an electrician in Missouri and Nebraska but the parent office was in Wyoming. TIC was the company Glossner worked for at that time. Glossner is an apprentice electrician in Utah at this time. Clyde says he is about 1,100 hrs short without the out of state verification. His application was conditionally denied pending documentation of more work experience.

MICHAEL CHIDESTER

Michael Chidester wanted his application reviewed by the board to test for journeyman. Chidester received his apprentice license 12/16/99. Chidester stated he worked for Utah Controls under the federal program but claimed he applied for the apprentice license with Utah controls earlier but the employer failed to submit his application to DOPL. Chidester's application was denied. He must wait until 12/16/03, if he keeps working full time. Rydalch emphasized, Chidester's Fed BAT license did not take the place of the requirement to be licensed in Utah as an apprentice for his time to count. Chidester needs to get a Utah license.
